

WIFE NO. 2 IN ANOTHER SUIT

Andrews' Golden-Haired Blonde
Broke Up Home, Pittsburgh
Woman Charges.

PITTSBURGH, May 11.—Esther Tamm, pretty blonde second wife of Herbert Thornton Andrews, is about to be drawn into another suit over a broken home.

PAPERS DRAWN.
As yet no new court proceedings have been begun. But papers have been drawn and will be made of record, it was announced here last night, as soon as Mrs. Ida M. Dixon signs them.

Mrs. Dixon is the wife of Dr. Charles Dixon, whose patients for the most part are members of Pittsburgh's wealthiest families. She says that Andrews' "Connexion" wife is the same golden-haired Esther who enlivened Dr. Dixon's off-practice hours while she was out of the city.

Harold M. Irons, assistant city attorney, has been retained by Mrs. Dixon. He has heard her story and has prepared the papers in her contemplated divorce action.

Mrs. Dixon, who was married to Dr. Dixon in July, 1918, and lived with him until January 3 last, told Irons she acted as her own detective. She said she first had learned from neighbors that a "blonde" had visited her home while she was out of town.

INQUIRED AT HOTEL.
As she told the story, Mrs. Dixon made inquiries at the Hotel Astor, where her husband has his office.

Mrs. Dixon informed the lawyer that she questioned the woman whom she identifies as Miss Tamm and obtained from her an admission that she and Dr. Dixon were friends.

Mrs. Dixon told Mr. Irons, further, that there had been a scuffle after she confronted her husband. She pointed to a scar in her hand, and said she had been cut with a surgical knife.

Mr. Irons would make no comment on the case other than to say: "I expect Mrs. Dixon to make affidavit to the libel very soon. I have drawn up a complaint on information furnished by her. As soon as the affidavit is confirmed I will file it."

CHIEFS CONSULT HARDING ON G. O. P. IN SOUTH
The future of the Republican party in the South was the subject of a conference today between President Harding, Postmaster General Hays, Clarence Miller, secretary of the Republican National Committee, and Representative Bascom Simpson of Virginia.

Plans for strengthening the party in the South and a tentative plan of Southern reorganization were discussed.

Marylanders Elect.
The annual election of the Maryland State Society, held at Johnson-Powell School last night, resulted as follows: President, Charles T. Clayton; vice president, William B. Severe; secretary, Miss Louise Marie Coudray; treasurer, C. Upton LeLauter; and historian, Dr. George C. Keidel.

MUST FACE GRILLING.
In the presence of his wife, two half grown children, and the tiny lad who is a co-defendant with his mother in the ex-banker charges the child in the issue of alleged illegitimate relations between Mrs. Stillman and Fred K. Beauvais, half breed Indian guide, the retired head of one of the greatest banking institutions of the world will be subjected to a cross examination which his wife's attorneys promise will be extraordinary in severity and thoroughness.

The man who will grill him is John E. Mack, guardian for little Guy and whose affection for the child and painstaking efforts in guarding its interests have been such that Justice McCreary has on occasion to make laudatory comment on it in rendering his recent alimony decision.

Stillman has been revealed to the investigators for Mrs. Stillman as a most accomplished liar, according to their reports, and the reports of acquaintances, now in the possession of lawyers. He never failed to remember birthday anniversaries and other special holiday occasions, they say.

He is described as "remarkably thoughtful." His favorite gifts were appropriate birthstones. His delicate attentions, as asserted, included a remarkable gift for interior decoration as well as a real talent for writing love letters.

In this connection it might be mentioned that Mrs. Stillman's supporters have come to the conclusion that Stillman burned or otherwise destroyed all letters received by him.

Their energies have been devoted lately to trying to secure from one or more of the ten women whose identities have been learned by them letters written by Mr. Stillman. His habit of thoughtfulness, it was pointed out yesterday, will be used against him in the trial. Mrs. Stillman has several letters from him, which her friends describe as "wonderfully written love letters." And her lawyers expect to show that they were indited and sent after Guy was born.

GETS ANOTHER LETTER.
One was in April, 1919, when Guy was about six months old, and the other was in December, 1919, when the baby was about a year old.

Also in this connection, it was learned that the defense has many witnesses prepared to testify to Mr. Stillman's appearance of warm regard and deep devotion to his wife at the time of Guy's birth in the Women's Hospital in the fall of 1918.

This occurred in a way not unusual for Mrs. Stillman. A woman who was a patient in the Women's Hospital at the same time wrote a letter to a lawyer associated with the defense. It was mailed in New York on Monday and reached its destination yesterday. The writer did not sign her name, but gave Park avenue as her address.

The recipient said that it was nothing like the usual anonymous letter. It mentioned names and facts already checked up by Mrs. Stillman's investigators and to be used in the actual defense. None of these names or facts have been revealed publicly. And it added other details and gave new names which are looked upon as most valuable.

The writer, who used stationery of the finest quality, expressed a most unfavorable opinion of Stillman, and asserted that despite the publication of letters asserted to have been written to Mrs. Stillman by Fred Beauvais, that her entire sympathies are with Mrs. Stillman.

STILLMAN TO FACE BABY GUY

Dramatic Reunion Looms When Child He Disowns Is Produced in Court.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Wire tapping and forgery were injected into the Stillman divorce scandal today as additional "ammunition" for Mrs. "Fifi" Potter Stillman in her counter action against her multi-millionaire husband's suit for divorce.

NAME WAS FORGED.
Counsel for Mrs. Stillman, it was learned, are prepared to show that her private home telephone wire was tapped and that her name was forged to the receipt for a cablegram.

Shortly after she had returned from Paris last year she was notified over the telephone by the cable office that there was a cablegram for her. She promptly sent her secretary to call for the message. When the secretary asked for the cablegram he was informed that a man already had called for it and signed Mrs. Stillman's name to the receipt.

In the course of subsequent investigation it was found that Mrs. Stillman's wire had been tapped; some "interested party" evidently had listened in and beat the secretary to the cable office.

Exactly in what phase of the case this will be used by her attorneys could not be learned, but there was strong intimation that the wire tapping and forgery is known to them.

BABY CALLED TO COURT.
When the ex-president of the National City Bank takes the stand for cross-examination by counsel for his wife there will be in the room a few feet from the witness stand his thirty-month-old boy, Guy, upon whom he has publicly placed the brand of alleged illegitimacy.

Besides Baby Guy, there will be at Mrs. "Fifi" Potter Stillman's side her seventeen-year-old son, James A. Stillman, Jr. ("Bud"), who not long ago told his father to his face that he would stick to the end to his mother and the "kid" brother, Anne.

Clarence Miller, the ex-banker's attractive "niece," daughter, is expected to be in Mrs. Stillman's "camp" in the courtroom when her father is grilled by her mother's counsel before Referee Gleason. Of the whole Stillman family only the seven-year-old son Alexander will be absent.

Such, at least, is the program for which both sides in the great marital scandal prepared today.

TAUGHT STILLMAN AT $20 A LESSON

Attractive Dancing Instructor
Admits She Guided Banker
In Terpsichorean Art.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Mrs. May Cochrane, the dainty and beautiful instructor, who has shown most of Wall Street how to dance, wearily admitted today that she had taught James A. Stillman all he knows of dancing.

Her weariness was caused by the fact that an innumerable train of detectives and friends of Mrs. Fifi Stillman had, she says, dogged her every movement for months.

Mrs. Cochrane is a dainty little person, with charm and manner, she told, with amusement, of the efforts of private detectives to link her name with the financier in the world-famous legal battle between himself and Mrs. Stillman.

HIS DANCING LESSONS.
"You are only one of many who have asked me, more or less vaguely, about my relations with Mr. Stillman," she said. "I am glad to tell you everything frankly. I have told every other man who has asked me just what my connections with Mr. Stillman were. I also spoke to one sleuth-like person who claimed he was a detective. He put me through an ordeal which he probably imagines was similar to the police 'third degree,' I would have been annoyed if I weren't amused."

"Now, I am a dancing instructor. My patrons are carefully selected. I charge $20 a lesson, and I have all I can do. Many big financial men have been among my pupils. Mr. Stillman was. I taught him what he knows of dancing in the two years he was my pupil. I went out with him several times to parties. I do the thing with any of my pupils who request it."

STRICTLY BUSINESS.
"Among other places I accompanied him to the Sleepy Hollow Country Club. Through his influence I obtained an engagement to dance there. I haven't seen him in four years."

"I think that sums up all my relations with Mr. Stillman. I do not know Mrs. Stillman, although I've seen her. I don't know Mrs. Leeds. There was never anything erotic in my friendship for Mr. Stillman."

"Cochrane" has been in my country place in Garden City. I haven't the slightest idea of what they hope to find. I'm sure that I am perfectly willing to give them all the information I can."

"Their activities are rather annoying and terribly boring. There is nothing that I am seeking to hide because there is nothing in my life to hide. I hope you will believe me."

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CAR

The early part of the year 1920, as everybody knows, was remarkable for the tremendous volume of automobile business.

Yet our deliveries for April 1921 greatly exceeded those of April 1920.

This fact speaks eloquently for the goodness of Dodge Brothers Motor Car, for the reputation of the Semmes Motor Company and for the wisdom of the Washington public.

People have not stopped buying motor cars. They are simply buying with greater care. They are demanding dollar for dollar in value.

And, as the figures show, they have learned where they may buy with full assurance that honest values are always to be obtained.
